News Editor ithout the help of few friends from Missouri, Diamondhead's Jack Inman might have missed out on this year's Cruisin' the Coast.

Jack and his wife JoAn moved to the Gulf Coast from Missouri ten years ago, and have driven their vintage 1955 Chevrolet pick-up in Cruisin' the Coast for the past six.

And for the past several years, they've been the hosts for several classic car-enthusiasts from the Springfield, Mo.-area during Cruisin' the Coast week.

Unfortunately, Jack is still in a walking cast from a motorcycle accident in March. He realized early on that, due to his injuries, he'd be unable to drive the standard-transmission pick-up at this year's Cruisin'.

When old friends Ron Murphy and Calvin Sowder heard Jack was out of the running this year, they came and took his truck back to Missouri, where Jack's son Rod put an automatic transmission in, then brought it back to Diamondhead just in time for

A bullet wound to the neck of a Shoreline Park teenager has been ruled an accidental shooting, according to Hancock County Sheriff Steve Garber.

"On Friday, the sheriff's department received a call on a shooting and Lt. Tim Broder and Deputy Bert Courrege were dispatched to Gulf Street scene. Officers discovered a 17-year-old had been shot once in the neck area and had been transported to Hancock Medical Center by a friend from the area," Investigator Tom Roan said.

Investigator now assigned to domestic violence cases

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

Publisher Emeritus Hancock County Sheriff Steve Garber, following the procurement of a federal and grant, now has a fulltime investigator to handle domestic violence cases.

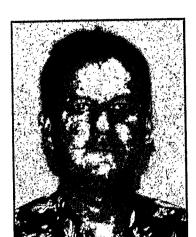

The grant is a matching grant between the Office of Justice Division and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

The federal amount is $28,0962 for personnel, fringe benefits and equipment and the matching amount from the Hancock Board County Supervisors was $9,364.

"We are really excited to have a investigator designated through a grant just to handle domestic violence cases. As you know, the reporting of domestic violence cases has increased in recent years," Garber said.

The sheriff's officer named to the new position is Tom Roan.

Roan, a native of Bastrop, LA., has spent the last 26 years in law enforcement. He joined the Hancock Sheriff's Department two years ago as a road officer.

He is married to the former Dana Aulds and they are the parents of three children, ages 13, 12 and 9. They attend school in the Hancock County School District. Roan and his family reside in the Jourdan River area.

Sheriff's Investigator Kenny Hurt said, "I am glad to have someone designated in the investigators department to handle domestic violence cases exclusively, as we have so many. It is a time consuming part of law enforcement, as I know from my own experience."

Hurt added, "I feel the problem has been around for a very long time, but many times the cases were not reported to law enforcement agencies."

During the past year Roan has been attending Attorney State General's Domestic Violence training sessions.

In the past two years, the sheriff office's officers have responded to almost one domestic violence call a day.

Family disturbances are the most difficult to sort out, according to law enforcement leaders, as times persons many involved in them will turn on the officers trying to quell them.

The violence is not only against a mate, child, or relative. Garber said, adding, Officers end up many times being attacked while trying to do their duty according to the laws of the state."

During the past two years, Hancock County Deputies have been subjected to being kicked, received cuts to their hands, bruises, etc., not to mention the numerous 'cussing outs,' when responding to domestic violence calls.

"Under the law now, if an officer feels a domestic violence has taken place, he has to make an arrest," Hurt said. "Some may think domestic cases are always a male against a female, male against male, female against female, but that is not the case, as there are cases of men against women and children against parents that we have to deal

"In many instances, the second party wants to drop charges, but not with the new law if an officer detects a violence has occurred," Garber added.

Roan said years ago domestic violence was referred to and as a 'Family Disturbance,' but now that has been changed to 'Domestic Violence.'

There are still some cases of domestic violence which are not reported, and law enforcement needs to know about them.

To report and incident to Hancock County Sheriff's office, call 228-467-5101, or 601-798-8555. or your respective police department.

"Michael Cuevas, 64, 5020 Lower Bay Road, was arrested and charged for the alleged possession of a stolen rifle Tuesday. He was booked initially with no bond and later a bond was set at $5,000 and he was released from the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility," according to jail reports.

"Cuevas' arrest is the result of a two-week long investigation into burglaries and thefts occurring in the Bay Side and Shoreline Park areas," according to Hancock Investigator Tom Roan.

"An arrest was made of a DeLisle resident staying with a friend at Bay Park Apartment in connection with drug charges and possession of stolen equipment. # Barbour challenges Musgrove for governor t's incredible in his Lgovernorship campaign, Haley that Barbour several times has invoked as a role model the name of Kirk Fordice, the guy who was a national embarfor rassment Mississippi the 1990s.

Fordice's eight years of negative leadership in the state's top office not only left Mississippi at the bottom in practically every economic index, but kept us ensconced as the nation's pariah.

Mississippi

By Bill Minor

For Barbour to paint Fordice as some kind of jobcreating ball of fire in contrast with an alleged jobMusgrove is particularly laughable. Wasn't

Governor Fordice, in 1999 when he was supposedly on an economic development trip to France, who was caught having junketed on a holiday with his girlfriend while his wife was back in Mississippi minding the store? Or was good ole Kirk out hunting for jobs for Mississippi when several times he went on monthlong safaris to bag trophy animals in Africa during the mid-1990s?

And wasn't it Kirk further tarnishing our state's image by being chastised

Ronnie by his fellow Republican governors at a national conference when he insisted that America was a "Christian" nation rather than "Judeo-Christian?"

Meantime, Mississippi was losing thousands of sewing industry jobs under NAFTA, without a squeak out of the Kirkster. But he could sit back and enjoy the luxury of having 30,000 jobs created in the state's gaming casino boom, a phenomenon he had nothing to do with.

If Barbour doesn't have anything better than a reprise of Kirk Fordice to sell Mississippians in his bid for governor, his theme of "I (with emphasis on the I) know we can do better" is certainly disingenuous.

Having never held public office, with no record of public Mississippi, Barbour's last 21 years have been in Washington becoming a consummate Republican insider that he converted into a personal fortune by trading contacts with GOP fat-cats as lobby clients.

His public life has been devoted to becoming a heavyweight party operative on the banks of the Potomac, far from the banks of the Pearl or the where Chickasawhay Mississippians labor daily to get off the bottom.

Yet Haley comes back down here to become our maximum leader while not in the least conversant with the gut problems this state has struggled with for years--better education,

Mississippians Are Talking About Haley's Plan...

Collinsville, MS September 29, 2003

Haley Barbour for Governor P.O. Box 1499 Yazoo City, MS 39194

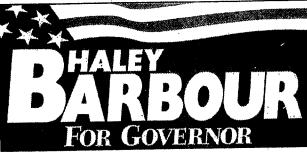

Dear Mr. Barbour,

I would like to commend you for the educational value of your website www.haleysplan.com. During our study of state government in my MS Studies class, I asked my 9th graders to compare the plans of the candidates for governor by viewing their websites. They were asked to look specifically for the candidates plans for the next four years. The students quickly told me that they could find no plans for the future on Mr. Musgrove's site. They stated that they could only find things that he was taking credit for in the past. Your website was very easy for them to use, and it was specific as far as plans for the next four years.

When one of the students commented, "We need to elect Barbour- we can't live on the past," I knew that they were able to look at issues and see who had a plan for the future and who didn't. Thank you very much for providing an educational tool for my students.

Mission Statement

The mission of The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation is to eradicate breast cancer as a life-threatening disease by advancing research, education, screening and treatment.

The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation was founded by Nancy Brinker. In 1980, Nancy's sister, Susan Goodman Komen a mother of two and native of Peoria, Illinois, died at the age of 36 after a three year battle with breast cancer. Following the spirit Susan exhibited trying to help other women combat the disease, nancy established the Foundation in 1982 and has become a national leader in the fight against breast cancer. The Foundation now represents thousands of volunteers across the nation and has raised more than $39 million since its inception.

St. Clare hosts trick-or-treat

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Are you looking for a safe place to take your child trick-or-treating? St. Clare Catholic Church and School in Waveland is hosting a trick or-treating event, which will be the kick off to it's annual fair.

It used to be that parents could take their children trick-or-treating without worrying about safety. Today, however, most parents take their children only to homes of neighbors, friends and relatives, staying away from the homes of strangers. This is why the fair committee at St. Clare Church and School decided to open the fair up to trickor-treating on Halloween night. This is an opportunity for our children to see their school in a different light. And it provides a safe, funfilled environment for Halloween, by having the children off the streets."

says Mark Cumella, principal of St. Clare School.

Taking children to the St. Clare fair to trick-or-treat, has more to offer than safety. After working all day, parents won't have to cook, eat and run out the door. Instead, they can come out to St. Clare's fair, grab a bite to eat, trick-or-treat and have a fun filled night without the stress. There will be a variety of food at the fair, including hamburgers, hot dogs and pizza, which most children love.

Looking for something for teenagers to do?

Bring them along! There will be a haunted hay ride, costume contests, a rock climbing wall, games, carnival rides, face painting, and much more! It will be a Halloween for the whole family to remember. The only stress of the evening will be getting those costumes on!

Other activities for the weekend include: $500 & $1000 raffle, local celebrity chefs, silent auctions, bingo, a white elephant booth, crafters, and live entertainment, including Michael Ladner, Friday, Oct. 31st, from 6 - 10 p.m., Keith Hoda and Country Sounds, Saturday, Nov. 1st, from 7 - 11 p.m.

The St. Clare fair will be held on the church grounds. Hours will be Friday, October 31st, 4 - 10 p.m.; Saturday, November 1st, 11 a.m. - 11 p.m.; and Sunday November 2nd, noon - 6 p.m. Admission is free, so mark your calendar!

All the while, the state has had to deal with having the nation's lowest per capita income, and the highest portion of black and lowincome population.

Every Mississippi governor (Fordice being a notable exception) or top state official I have observed over the past half century has acknowledged that better education is the golden key to our economic salvation.

Barbour gives no credit to Gov. Ronnie Musgrove, who has prided himself as being an "education governor," and can show some significant achievements on his watch to raise the quality of public

That may be understandable in a political race. But sought goal of bringing for Barbour to now become a school teachers' salaries up critic of our public schools is to the Southeast average. not. His credentials in that area are too weak.

When his chance came to demonstrate support for his hometown public schools-whose smooth integration in the mid-1970s drew national praise on a CBS news special--Haley blew it.

Instead of enrolling his two boys in public schools (as his brother Jeppie had done) Haley sent them to attend and graduate from the segregated private academy started up in Yazoo City.

That fact was confirmed to me by Gene Triggs, the former official of Mississippi Chemical Corp. and later director of the state's economic development agency. who had headed Friends of Public Schools, formed in the 70s to ease the transition of the town's schools.

When Ronnie Musgrove, then lieutenant governor, was matched in 1999 against Republican Mike the Parker, Congressman, I had described Musgrove as a non-colorful, unmelodiousvoiced education specialist very knowledgeable in state Musgrove then was not the betting favorite to win. But he won, promising little more than to maintain stability in state government through hard work, without fanfare, while tackling the state's inherent social and economic problems.

His primary emphasis, he made clear at the start, would be to build a stronger educational system and hopefully achieve the long-

When Musgrove took office in 2000 the state had enjoyed 10 years of unprecedented boom times as it shared in the national prosperity, sweetened by an injection of billions of dollars that suddenly made the state a new gambling Mecca.

But prosperity and boom times disappeared as the national economy tanked and the state's binge of gaming casino construction wound down.

So Musgrove was handed the mean job of keeping state government afloat and services running adequately on the rockiest economic encountered seas decades, as state revenues spiraled downward.

Plus, he had the unpopular task of battling over state dollars with 174 state legislators with their own pet programs to feed.

Based on my 50-yearsplus as an observer of state administrations, this is my assessment of Musgrove's tenure in the historically weak office of Mississippi governor:

* Better than most governors, he has delivered on what he promised, especially in improving education. And certainly he has brought no national embarrassment to the state. In fact, by landing the huge Nissan auto plant, he was the envy of made many other states.

* His voice hasn't become any more pleasing to the ear, and he's never tried to become a back-slapping, likeable good ol' boy in the mode that traditionally makes governors popular out at the forks of the creek.

But what he lacks in charisma and personal warmth he compensates for with footwork and sheer drive to meet groups anywhere and anytime to boost the state, as when he rushed to Gulfport to meet the big cruise ship that couldn't dock at New Orleans, and shook hands with every debarking passenger.

The question for voters is whether they want to turn over state leadership to an untested wannabe, sold by an unprecedented campaign bankroll, who wants Mississippians to trust him because he "knows" best how to lead.

The event will be open to high school age children and be in the form of timed trials, with two competitors racing from the staging area at Coleman Ave. at the Waveland end of the trail to Washington St. in Bay St. Louis. # Tort reform one of biggest and least understood issues this election year

BY SHELIA HARDWELL BYRD ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

It is a subject on the lips of nearly every Mississippi candidate this year, but tort reform could also be the most esoteric of the campaign issues.

The average Mississippian has little idea of what a tort is, says Marty Wiseman, director of the John C. Stennis Institute of Government at Mississippi State University.

Simply put, tort is a civil wrong for which a person can seek legal compensation. Tort reform means changing or adjusting civil justice laws to limit or cap the amount of damages awarded to those who file the lawsuits.

The problem, pro-business groups contend, is that juries runaway in Mississippi have been too Mississippi juries have handed out numerous awards of $100 million or more. Most were later settled for much lower, undisclosed amounts, or reduced by a judge or on appeal, but not before Mississippi earned a national reputation for jackpot justice.

Lawmakers met for 83 days in a special session last fall to try to remedy the situation. Mississippi now limits damages for pain and suffering to $500,000 in medical malpractice cases, and caps punitive damages against businesses at $20 million or no more than 4 percent of net worth.

Now, as the Nov. 4 general election approaches, Republicans are intensifying their tort reform mesold food service worker from Richland says she'll likely vote for Republican gubernatorial candidate Haley Barbour.

It appears Barbour is wasting his time when he tells voters of Sanford's ilk that lawmakers did too little to tighten the state's civil justice laws and that there should be a firm $250,000 cap on non-economic damages.

Daryl Stewart, the 35year-old director of audio at the Crowne Plaza Hotel in Jackson, knows about tort reform, but he says "it's really not affecting me to where my life is in a shambles." He's voting for Democratic Gov. Ronnie Musgrove.

Musgrove, who called last year's special session and was raked over the coals by trial lawyers for doing it, hasn't said whether he wants more controls over civil lawsuits.

Republican Lt. Gov. Amy Tuck has made tort reform her pet project, much to the chagrin of trial lawyers, including multimillionaire attorney Richard Scruggs, who backed more than $510,000 in loans to Tuck in

Last year, several Gulf Coast doctors walked off the job, saying they couldn't pay for coverage. And some rural communities found themselves in a health crisis after doctors closed their doors citing the inability to Wiseman's hunch is that most rank-and-file voters attach meaning to tort reform from what the political parties have told them. He'll test his theory with an institute poll this winter after the election rhetoric has cooled.

We saw how it tied legislators up for weeks in the special session," Wiseman said. "People chose sides and dug in. If you do that in (next year's) general session, that could cause gridlock on other issues."

Winn-Dixie raises said the Hancock Chamber's Business & Industry Golf money for Red Cross Disaster Fund

Winn-Dixie customers all across the Gulf Coast and Mississippi can help victims of recent Hurricane Isabel and thousands of other disasters across the country by simply "evening up" their grocery bill whenever they shop. Winn-Dixie has implemented its "Even-It-Up" program in all its stores as a way to assist the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund. The Disaster Relief Fund enables the Red Cross to provide immediate emergency relief to victims of Hurricane Isabel and thousands of other disasters throughout the year. The program, which runs through Thursday, October 9, is an easy, convenient way for customers to help disaster victims.

When a Winn-Dixie customer is checking out at the register, he or she may round up the bill to the next dollar, with the spare change donated to the Cross American Red Fund. Disaster Relief Customers also may choose to donate more by simply telling the cashier how much more they want to add to their total bill.

The organization has opened nearly 500 shelters for more than 59,000 people since Isabel first threatened the East Coast. Meanwhile, more than 2,300 Red Cross disaster volunteers are circulating throughout affected communities, distributing relief items and meals that have already nearly totaled 830,000.

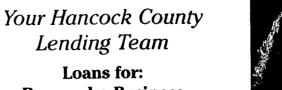

All Red Cross disaster

assistance is free, made possible by voluntary donations of time and money from the American people. You can help the victims of thousands of disasters across the country each year by making a financial gift to the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund, which enables the Red Cross to provide shelter, food, counseling and other assistance those in need. Supervisors later amended their action at the advice of county attorney Ronnie Artigues. Instead of sending a letter to Chancellor James Thomas Jr. from Hattiesburg, who is slated to hear the annexation bids from both cities, Artigues advised supervisors to send their opposition letter to the two cities. Sending the letter to the judge would be improper, Artigues said, because the county is not an official party to the suit.

To become an official party to the suit could cost the county upwards of $250,000 to $300,000 or more in legal and administrative fees, Artigues said.

All five supervisors voted yes to the amended action, which will likely not become an official part of the public record of the court.

Chief Varnell said. "It is a sin and a shame for this kind of behavior towards a memorial dedicated to all of the veterans that fought for our freedom. The volunteers made this a beautiful park so all could enjoy the site and they continually work hard to keep this memorial beautiful."

"I put these individuals that are responsible for this crime in the same light as robbing or defacing a grave," Varnell added.

Varnell "Veteran's Day is fast approaching and I know these volunteers will be looking for donations to replace the palm trees that were stolen. As they want to have the memorial in perfect order for Memorial Day."

Anyone wishing to make a contribution can contact Raymond Cuevas at 467-0131, or Felton Cuevas at 467-3248.

Supers eye beach project

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER Staff Writer

Long awaited plans for a beach renourishment project could get underway as early as the middle of December, said consultant Gerald Gex. Supervisors gave their approval this week for Brown and Mitchell Inc. to go forward with surveys and planning for a mile long, 200 ft. wide, stretch of beach going from Bayou Caddy to an Oak tree located just South of Sand Bayou. Supervisors made the decision in conjunction with a pledge from casino developers Cliff and Gene McCarlie that they would reimburse the county for planning costs should their plans for a casino near Bayou Caddy fall through. The two represent the interests of Phoenix Leisure/Dynasty.

Just over $2 million in Sea Wall Bond money was set aside for the project about two and a half years ago, but plans were held up while various state and federal agencies investigated possible environmental impacts to the area. With permits now in hand the project is set to go.

The beach plans will leave a long stretch of seawall unaffected, from the Oak tree to the Clermont Harbor Pier, so fishing areas should be largely Supervisors unaffected. made it clear that at least 900 feet of seawall will remain for fishing, but the area left may be closer to 2000 feet, Gex said.

County officials say hope that the beach will encourage economic development in the area, the proposed casino at the old location of the Jubilee and a newly proposed site at Lakeshore Dr.

The beach will also serve to protect the seawall and the beach road, both which are vulnerable to erosion without the protection of the beachfront. Repairs will also be made to the beach road. The project will not really be adding a new beach area, said Gex, but will be replacing a formally existing beach front that has eroded away over time. Next, Gex said. He hopes to add a beach to the area in front of Gulfside Assembly. Environmental studies will also need to take place in that area.

SSC football game with "Stephen Peterman Night."

he St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws paid tribute to one of their most decorated football players in school history on Friday. The Rocks honored first-team All-American Stephen Peterman with "Stephen Peterman Night" in their game against division foe Vancleave. The Rocks won the game 21-15 to improve to 3-3 and 2-0 in the division.

The school brought the current LSU star back to campus to honor his accomplishments in the game of college football where he plays offensive guard for the #6-ranked Tigers.

Peterman, a 2000 SSC graduate, was a four-year starter and earned All-Division three consecutive years for the Rocks where he played tight end/defensive end. During his junior the state playoffs. His senior year, Peterman was named to the Dandy Dozen in Mississippi and earned All-State honors later that year. He is also the only Rock-a-chaw ever to be invited to the prestigious Mississippi/Alabama All-Star game. In basketball, Peterman was a three-year starter and led the team to two division titles and three state playoff appearances. He also earned varisty letters in track and field where he threw the shotput and discus for the division champion Rock-a-chaws. In addition to those three sports, Peterman also earned a varsity letter in baseball.

Peterman recalled his days at SSC, "Tonight brings back a lot of memories. I owe St. Stanislaus a tremendous amount of thanks for all that they have done for me. The Brothers of the Sacred Heart are a special group of dedicated men. Without their constant guidance and the support of the faculty and staff at SSC, I would not have accomplished what I have. I am truly thankful and appreciative for all that they have done and continue to do."

Peterman, the youngest child of Fred and Pearl Peterman of Waveland, was recruited by virtually every school in the Southeast. He was courted heavily by LSU, Tulane, Tennessee, Notre Dame, Ole Miss, Florida, Mississippi State, and many others. When he signed with LSU, the Tigers were undergoing a facelift after when Nick Saban entered Mississippi College. on the scene, he picked up where the previous staff left off - hot on the trail of Stephen Peterman.

Since his arrival in Baton Rouge, Peterman has not ceased to impress the Tiger coaching staff with his work ethic both on and off the field. He lettered as a true freshman playing defensive end and special teams. Realizing that the Tigers would need some offensive linemen, Coach Saban asked if Peterman would be willing to give it a try. Peterman responded with the line that all coaches want to hear, "I just want to play and help the team win." The rest is history. Peterman has been named All-Southeastern Conference, All-American, and is a candidate for the Lombardi Trophy this year. The trophy is presented to the country's top interior lineman. Prior to the 2003 season, he led the Rocks to season, Peterman represented the LSU Tigers at the SEC Media Days and Peterman addressed the was named a preseason first-team All-American at offensive guard by several publications. He was also tabbed as the #1-rated offensive guard in the country by The Sporting News.

Peterman elaborated on the Tigers' success this season, "We are doing a good job. The team has a great group of seniors who are working hard with the younger players to ensure that the success continues. There are a lot of expectations for us this season and we are on a roll right now. We have to maintain our focus and intensity and concentrate on the game at hand. On any given day in the SEC, anyone can get beat."

Heading into the homestretch, the Waveland native is beginning to eye his chances at a future in the NFL. Peterman will have his shot to make a name for himself at the next level when he joins three other Hancock County products in the world of professional football. Future Hall of Famer Brett Favre, quarterback of the Green Bay Packers, prepped Hancock North Central and is a native of the Fenton community. Favre suited up, collegiately, at USM in Hattiesburg. Tennessee Titans safety Tank Williams played his high school football at Bay High School before moving on to Stanford University. CFL All-Star and 10-year veteran Shannon Garrett was a standout for St. Stanislaus firing Gerry DiNardo. But, before moving on to ast week's cooler weather and strong northerly winds from the first cold front of the season kept many anglers at the dock for most of the week. Judging by the catches and conditions this week it was certainly worth the wait.

Cooler weather, clean water make for great fishing

Cooler water temperatures, great salinity, and unbelievably clear water in the interior marshes has made for some great fishing and catching from Cat Island to Bayou Biloxi and all points in between.

Cat Island has started to produce nice trout on both the south and north sides. The water here is really clear and this must be taken into account when choosing baits and tackle.

For terminal tackle I prefer to use fluorocarbon leaders in such clear water, it cuts down on visibility and, due to it's high abrasion resistance, eliminates any worries I have when that 12 pound redfish makes a run into the grass that would shred a monofilament with chartreuse tail, and DOA shrimp in either pearl white or natural. I usually rig the cocahoe minnows on jigheads and Carolina rig the DOA shrimp, of course both baits work very well under a popping cork.

The fishing in the Louisiana marsh has continued to improve so far this month with many anglers producing very well around Ninemile and beyond.

The game plan for myself lately is to target redfish in the morning when the tide is higher and then to pursue trout once the tide starts falling. Redfish can be found in many of the shallow bays and flats all throughout the marsh.

Once I pull into a pond and am trying to determine if the fish are there I look for bait on top of the water. Preferred baits in this if mullet are present, then the reds can't be far behind.

Second I look for wakes water or their bronze backs breaking the surface of the water. Baits of choice have continued to be either Bass Assassins or Zoom flukes rigged weedless on a 4/0 hook, however DOA shrimp rigged on 20 lb. fluorocarbon leader have also been working very well when pitched to the fish.

Once you do catch one of these brutes in a shallow pond you will notice how badly he has muddied up the water. It is always a good idea to give that particular area of the pond a rest, maybe ten to twenty minutes while you search another area, before returning for more action. I think this break allows the other fish in the area to calm down and return to their feeding pattern.

Once you have your fill of redfishing in the morning it is time to start targeting the Productive water depths have been from eight feet to three feet and moving water is the key. We all have our own favorite fishing holes that we like to fish, however this time of year it is important not to sit on one particular hole for too long without producing, keep moving until you locate the fish and then sit on them.

I have mostly been working points and pond drains for them in just about every when in search of trout this past week and it has been paying off. Productive baits under a

'How to Succeed in Business' opens Oct. 16 at Bay Theatre

Little Theatre will present the musical comedy "How to Succeed in Business without Really Trying" Oct. 16-18 and 24-26.

This Tony award-winning play tells the story of J. Pierrepont Finch, who is more than just an ambitious window washer.

He works his way up the corporate ladder by the book — not the book that the executives would have written — but a quirky little tome entitled "How to Succeed in Business without Really Trying.'

The book teaches Finch how to advance quickly

Wicket Wide World Company while exploiting a precarious relationship with the president, Mr. Biggley, who has eyes for new secretary and former "cigarette girl" from the local gentlemen's club, Hedy La Rue.

Along the way Finch faces an expected enmity from Biggley's nephew, Bud Frump, who sees Finch as an obstacle to his own ambitions.

Unexpectedly, encounters romance (something the book tells him nothing about) with the ingenue, charming Rosemary. Even with his book, the young man seems

St. Louis through the ranks of the to make his way to the top and Burrows are also astride a wobbly tight rope. If he misses a step, he could bring himself, Rosemary, and maybe the whole company crashing down.

Producer Scott Darrah and director Jay Coker lead a capable production team including assistant director Michelle Kessling, choreographer Cheryl Grace and musical director Rev. Scotty Hardway.

"How to Succeed in Business without Really Trying" features music and lyrics by Frank Loesser and book by Abe Burrows, Jack Weinstock and Willie Gilbert based on the novel by Shepherd Mead. Loesser famously known as the writers who brought us Guys and Dolls. Show times are at 8 p.m.

Thursday through Saturday with a special matinee at 2 p.m. on Oct. 26. Admission is $12 for adults and $7 for students 17 and below. Tickets will be available at the door on the night of the show. For more information,

Haunted Fair set October 29-31

Staff Writer

Ithough frightening things await anyone who creeps into the Haunted Woods, the excursion is well worth the consequences.

The Haunted Woods Halloween Fair, planned for Oct. 29-31 from 7 to 10 p.m. each night, promises a spooky good time and a chance to help the children at : Hope Haven.

All the proceeds collected during this three-day fright fest will benefit the children's shelter.

Colleen Abadie, the Haunted Woods organizer, hopes the fair will become an annual fundraising event for Hope Haven.

She said the Haunted Woods Halloween Fair not

BY SHANNON JENKINS only serves as a benefit, but games. Abadie believes a provides safe fun for children and adults alike.

"It's cool for kids to have something to do and somewhere to go for Halloween," Abadie said.

The fair will offer older children and adults "real scares" with a haunted hay ride and the Fear Trail, which cuts through the woods on the VFW Post 4808 grounds on Lower Bay Road near Gulfview Elementary.

For young children, the fair will provide non-scary fun with the Trick-or-Treat Trail through the House of Boo, which includes fun characters who pass out candy. Photo opportunities will also be available with the Great Pumpkin in the pumpkin patch. There will also be food and there," she said.

game that allows visitors to throw "slime" filled balloons at a monster will be a favorite.

Although the fair is progressing well, Abadie originally wanted to do a haunted house.

"I talked to other people, and they mentioned a haunted house may not be practical because finding the right structure could be difficult," she said.

Abadie then brought the idea of having a hay ride to Sam Ladner, the commander at Post 4808. He graciously offered the post's grounds.

When Abadie saw the large grounds, she decided ' there was plenty of room for more than just a hay ride.

"It snowballed from

Abadie began soliciting local businesses for donations. Candy donations came Waveland from Kmart, Wal-Mart Market, Supercenter and Winn Dixie Coastal Hardware, Hubbards. Markel Industries and McDonald and Sons donated building materials while Adam's Paint and Sherwin-Williams provided paint.

Abadie also found about 16 volunteers to help run the fair, but she said she needs about 20 more to "cover all the bases."

Tickets are $2 for children 12 and under and $3.50 for general admission.

Any businesses or volunteers wishing to help may contact Colleen Abadie at 228-466-9366.

schoolhouse lily -- so named because they bloom in hurricane season and, believe it or not, we used to start school in September. Those were the good old days.

It is also commonly called Naked Lady because it has a long, slim stem with no leaves.

Known botanically as Lycoris radiata, you might have thought it was native to the South because of the way it naturalizes with ease and brings color and beauty to the overheated landscape. But this fascinating, easy-togrow bulb actually originates in Japan.

This year I saw more bulbs for sale than normal, making me think this oldtime favorite is making a comeback.

If you feel the need to run out and buy some red spider lilies now, you may be disappointed. These bulbs are at garden centers mostly in late winter and early spring.

Plant red spider lily bulbs in the spring in fertile, organic-rich, well-drained beds in full or partial sun. Place the bulbs 3 to 4 inches deep, spacing 6 to 8 inches apart. They can be planted in straight lines for a formal look, but usually look better in bold, informal drifts. Water the blooming spider lily well to extend its floral show as long as possible.

Once the flower is finished, the foliage arises and will make food for the bulb from fall or winter through late spring. The temptation is to mow those that have naturalized or cut them back for a tidy look, but this will harm the next season's bloom.

If you want to move this plant, divide in the spring as the foliage starts to turn yellow. This is the best way to get a really good stand. Even better is to get your own bulbs this winter.

Because the red spider lily doesn't bloom long, it makes a great addition to beds with a groundcover like ivy: the flowers will emerge above the groundcover but will not be missed when they retreat back to the ground.

The long stamens give a tropical appearance that allows them to be used in and around bananas and elephant ears. Use them under rice paper plants, or try planting drifts among bluegreen hostas.

In addition to the red spider lily, look for the white Alba, the yellow-gold Lycoris aurea (zones 8 to 10) and Lycoris squamigera, the real Naked Lady. This plant features pink blooms during the summer and is cold-hardy. The red spider lily will be out of sight and out of mind in a few days.

But if you liked the red spider lily's bloom this fall, don't forget to buy those bulbs in late winter and plant them. They will surprise you next fall.

You may want to consult a counselor who is trained to work with children and who will listen to your concerns, review your child's behavioral, medical, family and school history and, with your permission, contact your child's doctor They may ask about your child's interaction with other family members, teachers and peers. The counselor will also spend time with your child to determine your child's perception of the problem using interviewing techniques such as drawing and playing with toys since children sometimes find it difficult to communicate.
